Expert Statement

Jeffrey Bedser

I, Jeffrey Bedser, declare as follows:

I have been retained by Crowe & Dunlevy LP (the "Client") as an expert consultant in the suit captioned, "GoForIt Entertainment, LLC v. DigiMedia.com L.P., et al," in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division. The following information is true and correct to the best of my knowledge.

As president and COO of Internet Crimes Group, Inc. (ICG), I have been involved in Internet and computer forensic investigations for twelve years. Prior to co-founding ICG, I have worked in corporate security management and investigations in the financial and pharmaceutical industries.

ICG has set the industry standards in developing responses to Internet threat communities and cybercrime. Our innovative approach to driving actions against Internet threats has resulted in thousands of successful actions to mitigate Internet threats and millions of dollars in remuneration to injured parties.

I have provided cybercrime educational program support to the Criminal Justice Department of Rutgers University and to the New York State Judicial Institute. I received my undergraduate degree from Rutgers College of Rutgers University.

In addition to being interviewed as an expert for several media outlets on the topics of cyber crime, including The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, Money Magazine, The Financial Times, Business Week, CNN's TechTV and The Voice of America, I have often been a speaker for ASIS International, INFRAGARD, HTCIA, Net Focus, the eCrime Congress, the National Investor Relations Institute (NIRI), The Practicing Law Institute, The Conference Board and the FBI Training Academy at Quantico.

Additionally, I have current and previous membership experience with several national and international organizations, including, ICANN (Security and Stability Advisory Council), ASIS International (Cyber Threats Taskforce), Joint Council for Information Age Crime (JCIAC), Security Journal (Palgrave Macmillan Ltd) - Editorial Board.

Finally, I have received certification from ASIS International board Certified Protection Professional (CPP) and High Tech Crime Network Certified Computer Crime Investigator – CCCI (advanced).

Testimonials provided in the previous ten years:

- State of New Jersey vs. Dr. Ross Finesmith – declared expert. Case has not gone to trial.
- U.S. District Court for the Central District of California - EchoStar vs. NDS Group - Expert, deposed, testified.

Over the past twelve years, I have been personally involved or managed thousands of cases involving cybercrime in both an investigative and forensic capacity. This experience includes the forensic examination of over hundreds of forensic datasets related to suspect web servers to support hundreds of potential civil claims.

Finally, I have been engaged by approximately 150 clients over this period for Internet investigative services, and engaged by more than 50 additional clients over this period for forensic services and consulting.

Team assembled to produce expert report:

As part of this expert report, I have been asked to review the Original Complaint and Jury Demand, the Supplement to Original Complaint and Jury Demand, the Defendant Answer, Counterclaim and Third Party Complaint and the Expert Report provided by Charles Miller, PhD of Independent Security Evaluators. In his expert report, Dr. Miller:

- a) Discussed the necessary technical background that is independent of the complaint, and
- b) Discussed how this technical information is applied to the issues in the complaint.

I have assembled a team from within ICG that has provided their own individual expertise to information and analysis, including that which has resulted from various testing procedures to support this report. Their hourly rates is as follows:

Jeffrey Bedser	$475;
James Emerson	$400;
Frank Scheer	$350; and
Supporting Staff	$270.

In addition to speaking with legal counsel for Defendants, I have discussed the case with Scott Day, the founder of DigiMedia, and Jay Chapman, the secretary of the Defendant, DigiMedia.com Management, Inc. During my discussion with these individuals, we discussed the case, as well as daily operations of DigiMedia and how they may relate to this case. Additionally, I interviewed Dan Walton, the person who has and had done the configuration efforts for the DNS services for DigiMedia et al in regards to the configuration of the services and the history thereof.

ICG, Inc.

Technical Information Background

The Domain Name System (DNS) is a standard hierarchical naming system used on the internet to associate physical machines normally identified by IP addresses (e.g. 157.166.226.26) with more recognizable names, such as www.cnn.com. A DNS server is governed by a set of rules which it uses to connect users to the proper machines based on the name they use. For example, a DNS server could redirect www.test.com to 123.45.67.89 and mail.test.com to 21.43.65.87.

In the DNS server's configuration files, it is possible to use a "Wildcard record" which handles several possible names at once. For example, a DNS server controlling the test.com domain name could be configured with the following line:

admin      IN      A      11.22.33.44

This configuration means that a user going to http://admin.test.com/ would be communicating with the machine identified by the IP address 11.22.33.44. However, that configuration line does not handle input such as http://super.admin.test.com/. In order to handle all prefixes to "admin", a Wildcard record such as the following would be necessary:

That configuration would send requests to admin.test.com, www.admin.test.com, and super.admin.test.com to the same machine, 11.22.33.44. A wildcard record must begin with an asterisk (*). Consequently, the following record is not a wildcard and would not be triggered by a request for admin.www.test.com:

```

ICG, Inc.

The Complaint

Having reviewed Dr. Miller's report, I have concluded that there is insufficient information to support his opinions. Based on Dr. Miller's assessment, the only referenced information available for review was the photographic copies (screen captures) of the complaint exhibits. In order to validate his analysis, I would need to have the process by which these copies/captures were created (in digital form as validated evidence) from either from the instances in which the exhibits were created, or from any testing processes conducted by Dr. Miller. Such digital information would include: the source code from the websites observed, the version of the web browser used to produce the exhibits, or the timestamps of when the activities occurred. Without this information, it is difficult to analyze, or replicate with precision, the results displayed as screen captures as represented in the original complaint. Attempts were made to validate Dr. Miller's findings via forensic process reconstruction based on most likely scenarios, however, they were unsuccessful. Additionally, attempts were made to replicate the screen captures, but were again unsuccessful.

However, it was possible to reproduce a model of Exhibit K, in which content from one site (www.circuitcity.com) is displayed as the web content, while showing a different URL in the address bar. In this case, the result appears to demonstrate that content from Best Buy (www.bestbuy.com), while the URL in the address bar is shown as: <http://www.cnn.com> (ref. Figure 1).

ICG, Inc.

This result was produced first by accessing www.bestbuy.com. Once completely loaded, the URL in the address bar was simply changed from <http://www.bestbuy.com/> to <http://www.cnn.com>, without providing the command to actually access the site. It should be noted that while this replication was possible in MSIE 6.0, it was not fully replicable in MSIE 7.0. This demonstration illustrates the fact that without access to the same digital evidence that was used to produce the complaint exhibits, or to those analyzed by Dr. Miller, a true analysis is not possible.

For this expert report, along with my team, I have analyzed the exhibit information available in the original complaint, the digital information of Zone Files and other server data provided by the Client, and I have attempted to duplicate, where necessary, the results as cited in the original complaint. These actions were done to demonstrate the Defendants' claim that the Defendants do not use "goforit" in the DNS architecture or in any other analyzed source that would allow potential traffic belonging to the Plaintiff to be directed to any of the Defendants' identified websites.

ICG, Inc.

Statement of Opinion

As a result of the analysis performed, the following has been demonstrated:

1. None of the Defendants use the term "goforit" in their DNS records. For example, attempts to access a URL, in which the domain is one controlled by one of the Defendants (listed in Exhibit A and Exhibit B), and the sub-domain is "goforit" fail, such as in the example, goforit.abroad.com. As such, there was no opportunity for a resultant webpage to contain both a domain belonging to the Defendants and the term "goforit" as a sub-domain in the address bar.
2. By accessing one of the Defendants' websites, using "goforit" as a sub-domain, the user gets an error message. This error messages are the result of the Defendants' modification of the website Zone Files that exclude any requests from the nameserver where "goforit" or "go4it" are included in the sub-domain by directing such a request to the IP address, 0.0.0.0, a resulting error message or an otherwise blank screen.
3. As no instance was identified in which a resultant webpage appeared to be controlled by the Defendants, there was no instance in which any content, or list available also controlled by the Defendants was available or otherwise displayed. As such, there was no opportunity to test whether "goforit" continued to appear as a sub-domain after any of the resultant links on the Defendant's websites were accessed/clicked, either as a webpage frame or otherwise.
4. Of the keyboard shortcuts detailed in the original complaint and in Dr. Miller's report (in which the text, "goforit.org" or "goforit.com" was already present in the address bar and a keyboard shortcut was implemented) the website that appears in the browser is not one that is controlled by the Defendants.
5. None of the Defendants' 295 domains listed in Exhibit A and Exhibit B include the term "goforit." Nor do the terms "goforit" "go4it" or "gofourit" appear in any of the other domains identified as being registered to the Defendants.
6. Examples have been identified, in which "goforit" is a sub-domain. In none of these identified samples are the Defendants the registrant of the website domain.
7. In none of the identified Whois registration information collected from domains containing the terms, "goforit" "go4it" or "gofourit," such as goforitexample.com, are any of the Defendants listed as the registrant.
8. The use of wildcard DNS is a common, allowable practice. It is used by several different kinds of sites. Wildcard DNS is not a hacking technique.

ICG, Inc.

GoForIt as a sub-domain

In order to discover whether any of the Defendants' websites would resolve, when "goforit" was entered as the sub-domain of that website, extensive testing was performed.

According to Dr. Miller's report, Exhibit I illustrates an example of the result of when a user has attempted to enter "goforit" as a sub-domain of internetproviders.com. It should be noted that the domain, internetproviders.com is no longer registered to the Defendant. In this case, however, as Exhibit I shows, and as Dr. Miller as described, the user is not delivered content from the GoForIt website when attempting to access the URL, goforit.internetproviders.com. Rather, the website does not resolve to the GoForIt website, likely because the internetproviders.com web server is not configured to direct traffic to another site.

A more familiar example would be that if a user entered the URL, foxnews.cnn.com into a browser's address bar, the user would likely not be directed to the FoxNews website because the CNN web server is not set up to direct traffic in such a way. In this case, an error message is displayed (using Mozilla Firefox v.3.0.13) that "Firefox can't find the server at foxnews.cnn.com) (ref. Figure 2).

ICG, Inc.

The original complaint alleges, that when the user attempts to access the URL, goforit.internetproviders.com, not only does the GoForIt mark continue to appear in the address bar, content from the Defendant is displayed in the content window. My team conducted live tests to demonstrate that attempts to access any of the 295 websites identified in Exhibit A and Exhibit B, while "goforit" appears as a sub-domain, do not resolve to any website registered to any of the Defendants. For example, testing was done to access the URL, <http://goforit.abroad.com>, where the Defendant's domain is abroad.com and the sub-domain is "goforit".

It should be noted that three exceptions were made in this testing. On August 20, 2009, ICG was informed that three domains, as cited in Exhibit A, are no longer registered to DigiMedia.com L.P. As such, these domains were not included in the testing:

1. Basketball.org
2. Icehockey.com
3. Webdesign.com

The result of this testing demonstrates that when attempting to access any of the URLs, in which the domain is one of the Defendants' domains listed in Exhibit A and Exhibit B, and in which the sub-domain is "goforit," the user is redirected to the browser's default search engine (ref. Appendix A). In this case, Microsoft Internet Explorer (MSIE), version 7.0 (7.0.6001.1800) was used. As a result of the attempts to access the URLs tested, the user was redirected to the Microsoft search engine, Bing.

While conducting these tests, the screen recorder software, Camtasia Studio¹, version 6.0.0, which recorded the onscreen activity during these tests was also used. The entirety of the computer display screen was captured, including the address bar. In total, thirty two separate captures were made that visually demonstrate the testing procedure.

Statement of ICG analyst that performed testing is attached below, under the section, Supplementary Expert Statements.

ICG, Inc.

GoForIt appearing in PHP-Generated webpage

In order to determine whether it was possible for a webpage that included a Defendants' website along with "goforit" as a sub-domain to render, an analysis was performed on each of the website's DHP Zone Files.

According to the original complaint, the user can access one of the Defendant's domain websites, while "goforit" remains in the address bar as a sub-domain. Additionally, the complaint alleges that when the user accesses a link for one of the categories listed on the resultant website, "goforit" remained in the address bar. As an example, even after the user accessed the URL, <http://goforit.webdesign.com>, and accessed a link listed on the website, in this case, the user clicked the link for "custom programming." As shown in Exhibit J of the complaint, the sub-domain, goforit continues to appear after the user accesses the link.

Our testing demonstrates that at no time was the user able to access any of the Defendants' websites when "goforit" was entered as the sub-domain. As such, there was no opportunity to test whether "goforit" continued to appear as a sub-domain after any of the resultant links on the Defendants' websites resolved.

Additionally, my team analyzed historical logs and configuration files from the Defendants' website. The reviewed information was from periods of time in 2006, 2007 & 2009. One of the file types reviewed were DHP Zone Files. The Zone Files identify the DNS zone within the DNS. Each zone contains information that defines the route, or relationship, between a domain name and an IP address. Zone files can be altered to define specific directives that instruct the name-server to perform a specific task or to apply a special setting to the zone. For example, if a request is made to the server to access the URL, google.org.com, the Zone File identifies the IP address of the resultant URL – as viewed by the user – to be 0.0.0.0. In this case, the webpage does not resolve, as the IP address, 0.0.0.0 is null.

It is my understanding that the Defendants altered the PHP code in 2006 to explicitly remove any possibility that any of the Defendants' domains would resolve when "goforit" appeared as the sub-domain. This analysis was performed to determine the construction of the PHP code and therefore, what the outcome would have been if a user entered such a URL in the address bar. Additional searches were performed of the provided code for any instance of keyword terms, "goforit" "go4it" and "gofourit" to assure that variants of the Plaintiff's names were also accounted for.

Based upon the Zone Files analyzed, my team has concluded, and I can state that the results of attempting to access any of the Defendants' websites, where "goforit" appeared as the sub-domain, would render the display of an error message. While different browsers may display varying contents within the error message, an example, using Firefox, would be that if a user attempted to access the URL, goforit.org.com, they would have been directed to the IP, 0.0.0.0. In the Firefox example, this error is displayed as "Failed to Connect." Another result, depending on the browser used, may be a blank screen. In any case, any resultant webpage would not include content belonging to the Defendants.

We also searched the entirety of the Zone Files provided by the Client for any instance of the keywords "goforit" "go4it" and "gofourit". These terms appeared within a total of fifteen files, all dated, January 26, 2007:

WMB000162	WMB000171	WMB000179
WMB000163	WMB000173	WMB000180
WMB000165	WMB000175	WMB000181
WMB000166	WMB000177	WMB000182
WMB000170	WMB000178	WMB000183

In each case, the identified code indicates a directive on behalf of the server. Specifically, the code instructs the nameserver to direct the user to the IP, 0.0.0.0 when either "goforit" or "go4it" appear as a sub-domain, or as a sub-domain with a "wildcard" sub-domain, where "*" indicates a wildcard.

goforit IN A 0.0.0.0
*.goforit IN A 0.0.0.0
go4it IN A 0.0.0.0

Statement of ICG analyst that performed testing is attached below, under the section, Supplementary Expert Statements.

ICG, Inc.

Webpage Framing

According to the original complaint, the Defendants have engaged in webpage framing and/or other server manipulation techniques. Additionally, the original complaint alleges that, when a visitor is directed to a website, where “goforit” is the sub-domain, the “goforit” mark remained in the URL within the address bar regardless of what link the user accessed from the Defendants' website. As Dr. Miller observes with Exhibit K:

Despite following a link to a Circuit City advertisement, the URL still displays “goforit” as the sub-domain. This page is dynamically generated by the website based on the link that is followed. While some of the content likely comes from the real Circuit City web server, the page displayed comes from goforit.com.org.

We have been unable to verify Dr. Miller's conclusion, based on the evidence that he reviewed.

Without access to the digital content used to produce Exhibit K, such as the source code from the original page that contained the Circuit City advertisement link and the source code from the resultant webpage containing the framed Circuit City advertisement, it is extremely difficult to analyze the result, as represented in Exhibit K, and commented on by Dr. Miller.

Again, as determined from our testing performed, at no time was the user able to access any of the Defendants' websites while “goforit” appeared as a sub-domain. As such, there was no opportunity to test whether “goforit” continued to appear as a sub-domain after any of the resultant links on the Defendants' websites were accessed/clicked, either as a webpage frame or otherwise. Further, since none of the Defendants' content was accessible, it was not possible to access any link to discover any results.

ICG, Inc.

Keyboard Shortcuts

<CTRL + ENTER>

In order to determine whether the keyboard shortcuts, as identified in the complaint and commented on by Dr. Miller, work with "goforit" pre-populated in the address bar, we conducted our own testing.

The more popular Internet browsers, MSIE and Firefox provide specific shortcuts that add text to the beginning and end of text that appears in the address bar. These shortcuts can be used to "address" a website name that appears in the address bar. For example, in both MSIE and Firefox, when the text, "example" appears in the address bar, and the user implements the shortcut <CTRL + ENTER> the text, "http://www." is placed in front of the text "example" and ".com" is placed after the text, "example." Thus the address bar displays and redirects to: http://www.example.com.

According to the example provided in the original complaint, if the text, "www.goforit.org" were pre-populated in the user's address bar, and the user implemented the keyboard shortcut, <CTRL + ENTER>, thus adding the text "http://www." to the beginning of the text, and ".com" to the end of the text, the resultant website, controlled by the Defendant, would have appeared: http://www.www.goforit.org.com, where the Defendant's website is "org.com".

We conducted tests to determine if current use of this shortcut used in MSIE and Firefox, in conjunction with already present text – in this case, "goforit.org" – redirected the user to a website controlled by one of the Defendants.

As a result of testing performed (ref. Appendix B), when using MSIE, in which the text, "goforit.org" was already present in the address bar and the keyboard shortcut <CTRL + ENTER> was implemented, the website resolved to http://goforit.org.com. However, rather than providing any content belonging to the Defendants, the following message was observed (ref. Figure 3):

Internet Explorer cannot display the webpage

Most likely causes:

- You are not connected to the Internet.
- The website is encountering problems.
- There might be a typing error in the address.

ICG, Inc.

A similar result occurred when using Firefox. In this case, the following error message appears:

Firefox can't find the server at www.goforit.org.com.

<CTRL + SHIFT + ENTER>

A similar keyboard shortcut <CTRLK + SHIFT + ENTER> was also tested. In the case of MSIE, if the text, "www.goforit.org" were in the user's address bar, and the user implemented the keyboard shortcut, <CTRL + SHIFT + ENTER>, the prefix "http://www." is added to the beginning of the text, and a default top level domain is added to the end, depending on the browser used. We observed that in MSIE, the text, ".com" is added to the end of the text in the address bar, and in Firefox, the text, ".org" is added to the end of the text in the address bar.

Again, we conducted tests to determine if current use of this shortcut used in MSIE and Firefox, in conjunction with already present text – in this case, "goforit.org" – redirected the user to a website controlled by the Defendant.

As a result of testing by ICG, using MSIE (ref. Appendix B), when "goforit.com" is pre-populated in the address bar and the shortcut <CTRL + SHIFT + ENTER> is implemented, the website resolves to: http://goforit.com.

ICG, Inc.

In Firefox, the default is to add “.org” to the end of the text. As a result of testing by ICG, when “goforit.com” is pre-populated in the address bar and the shortcut <CTRL + SHIFT + ENTER> is implemented, the following error message appears:

Server not found
Firefox can't find the server at www.goforit.com.org.

<SHIFT + ENTER>

Another Firefox shortcut, <SHIFT + ENTER> adds "http://www." to the beginning of the text in the address bar and ".net" to the end of the text in the address bar.

As a result of testing performed by ICG (ref. Appendix B), when using Firefox, in which the text, “goforit.com” was already present in the address bar and the keyboard shortcut <SHIFT + ENTER> implemented, the website resolved to a search portal on the website, www.infoweb.net:

<http://search2.infoweb.net/?mysearch=GoogleMore&cx=partner-pub-4439433893956309%3Aq0ed2xawn7u&cof=FORID%3A9&ie=ISO-8859-1&q=goforit&sa=Search#905>. Infoweb.net is privately registered through Domains by Proxy, Inc. of Scottsdale, Arizona.

ICG, Inc.

While conducting these tests, we once again utilized the screen recorder software, Camtasia Studio, which recorded the onscreen activity during these tests. The entirety of the computer display screen was captured, including the address bar.

Statement of ICG analyst that performed testing is attached below, under the section, Supplementary Expert Statements.

Defendant Domain Association with GoForIt

In order to demonstrate that "GoForIt" does not appear in any of the domains associated with the Defendants, we searched for the terms, "goforit" "go4it" and "gofourit" within the 290 domains listed in Exhibit A and the five domains listed in Exhibit B.

As a result of these searches, we were unable to identify any instance in which one or more of these three terms appeared in any of the 295 domains listed in Exhibits A and B.

Additionally, we identified the 1,731 domains hosted on the same IP address as the previously identified 295 domains. As a result of the reverse IP address search (ref. Appendix C) of 216.234.246.150, we have identified the following regarding the domain registration information:

1. Three (3) domains are currently registered either to Cyberfusion, LP or FantasyPlanet.com, LP, both of which are located in Wichita Falls, Texas.
2. One thousand six hundred fifty (1,650) domains are registered to DigiMedia.com LLP, located in Duncan, Oklahoma.
3. Seventy five (75) domains are registered to Happy Days, Inc., located in Terral, Oklahoma.
4. Two (2) domains are registered to Moniker Privacy Services in Pompona Beach, Florida
5. One (1) domain is registered to Rogers & More, located in New York, NY

In none of the identified Whois registration information collected from these domains do the terms, "goforit" "go4it" or "gofourit" appear.

We also searched for all currently registered domains that contain the terms, "goforit" "go4it" or "gofourit", such as goforit-example.com. As a result of these findings, we have identified the following:

1. Two hundred eighty nine (289) domains contain the term "goforit" (ref. Appendix D)
2. Two hundred seventeen (217) domains contain the term "go4it" (ref. Appendix E)
3. Nine (9) domains contain the term "gofourit" (ref. Appendix F)

In none of the identified Whois registration information collected from these domains do any of the Defendants appear to be the registrant.

ICG, Inc.

Examples of domain names that use "goforit" as a sub-domain

Multiple instances have been identified, in which "goforit" is a sub-domain of another domain website. Based on limited, general Internet searches, examples of these instances include (ref. Appendix G):

goforit.heinle.com
 goforit.comicgenesis.com
 goforit.newsvine.com
 goforit.twbbs.org
 goforit.seesaa.net
 goforit.7narabe.net
 goforit.newswire.com

ICG, Inc.

In none of the instances identified, in which "goforit" is a sub-domain, is the domain also one that is registered to any of the Defendants. For example, the domain, newswire.com, is registered to Narrowcast in Massachusetts, contains "goforit" in the sub-domain (ref. Figure 5). Although it is unknown whether "goforit" appears as a sub-domain due to wildcard DNS, the sub-domain appears even after one of the links on the page is accessed (ref. Figure 6).

ICG, Inc.

Further, the use of wildcard DNS is a common, allowable practice. It is not a hacking technique. It is used by several different kinds of sites from well-known, reputable companies and organizations. Among the examples where wildcard DNS was identified include the following (ref. Figure 7):

In the U2.com example, the sub-domain, "goforit" appears even after multiple links are accessed on the site.

Conclusions

ICG has analyzed the exhibit information available in the original complaint, as well as digital information of zone files and other server data provided by the Client and has performed a series of live tests, which have demonstrated the following:

1. When attempting to access a URL, in which the domain is one controlled by the Defendant (listed in Exhibit A and Exhibit B), and the sub-domain is "goforit," such as in the example, goforit.abroad.com, the user is redirected to the browser's default search engine. In no instance did a resultant webpage appear to be controlled by the Defendant. As such, there was no instance, in which a resultant webpage contained both a domain belonging to the Defendant and the term "goforit" as a sub-domain in the address bar.
2. An analysis of the Zone Files indicates that if a user were to access any of the Defendants' websites, where "goforit" appeared as the sub-domain, the user would be displayed an error message. Further, ICG's analysis of these files indicates that the Defendant has taken steps to exclude any such requests from the nameserver, where "goforit" or "go4it" are included in the sub-domain to direct the server to the IP address, 0.0.0.0, which would result in an error message or an otherwise blank screen.
3. Regarding webpage framing, as no instance was identified in which a resultant webpage appeared to be controlled by the Defendant, there was no instance any content, or list available that was also controlled by the Defendant. As such, there was no opportunity to test whether "goforit" continued to appear as a sub-domain after any of the resultant links on the Defendants' websites were accessed/clicked, either as a webpage frame or otherwise.
4. Regarding keyboard shortcuts used by MSIE and Firefox, there were no instances, in which the text, "goforit.org" or "goforit.com" was already present in the address bar and a keyboard shortcut was implemented, was the resultant website one that is controlled by the Defendant.
5. In none of the identified Whois registration information collected from the 295 domains listed in Exhibit A and Exhibit B, nor from any other of the domains identified as being registered to the Defendants, do the terms, "goforit" "go4it" or "gofourit" appear.
6. In none of the identified Whois registration information collected from domains containing the terms, "goforit" "go4it" or "gofourit" is the Defendant listed as the registrant.

ICG, Inc.

7. Multiple examples have been identified, in which "goforit" is a sub-domain of another website. The Defendant is not the registrant of any of these identified website domains.
8. The use of wildcard DNS is a common, allowable practice. It is used by several different kinds of sites, including well-known, reputable companies. Wildcard DNS is not hacking technique.

Supplementary Expert Statements

Christopher Kerr

I, Christopher Kerr, declare as follows:

Using Internet Explorer version 7, I tested the use of sub-domains with DigiMedia and HappyDays parent domains. I used "goforit" as the "child" or sub-domain in the URL address and used the listed domains in 'Exhibit A' (digimedia.com domain names) and 'Exhibit B' (Happy Days domain names) as parent domains. In the domain name "goforit.Acid.com," for example, "goforit" is the "child" or sub-domain of the parent "Acid.com" domain name. The browser resolved all tested sub-domains to a default search page.

I tested popular keyboard shortcut with both Microsoft Internet Explorer and Firefox web browsers. In Microsoft Internet Explorer version 7, I typed "goforit.org" in the address bar and hit <CTRL+ENTER>, the URL address bar displayed "http://goforit.org.com" however Microsoft Internet Explorer version 7 stated it couldn't display the webpage. In Firefox version 3.5.2 I typed "goforit.org" in the address bar and hit <CTRL+ENTER>. The URL address bar displayed "http://goforit.org.com" but Firefox displayed a page which stated it couldn't find the server at "http://goforit.org.com." In Internet Explorer version 7 I typed "goforit.com" and hit <CTRL+SHIFT+ENTER> which would resolve to http://goforit.com. In Firefox version 3.5.2 I typed "goforit.com" and hit <CTRL+SHIFT+ENTER>, the address bar displayed http://www.goforit.com.org/ and browser showed an "unable to Connect" page. In Firefox version 3.5.2 I typed "goforit.com" and hit <SHIFT+ENTER> the browser resolved to search result page.

I also tested the popular keyboard shortcuts with Firefox version 3.0: I typed "goforit.org" in the address bar and hit <CTRL+ENTER>. The URL address bar displayed "http://goforit.org.com" however the browser displayed an "Address Not Found" page indicating it couldn't find the server at www.goforit.org.com.

In Firefox version 3.0 I typed "goforit.com" and hit <CTRL+SHIFT+ENTER>, the address bar displayed http://www.goforit.com.org/ and browser showed an "Address Not Found" page indicating it couldn't find the server at www.goforit.org.com.

In Firefox version 3.0 I typed "goforit.com" and hit <SHIFT+ENTER> the browser resolved to search result page.

In Firefox version 3.5.2, I demonstrated there was no wildcard use in path name using 3 separate examples. In the first example I typed "digimedia.goforit.com" and hit enter, the browser resolved to a Bing search page with "digimedia.goforit.com" in the search field. In the second example I typed "HappyDays.goforit.com" and hit enter, the browser resolved to a Bing search page with "HappyDays.goforit.com" in the search field. In the third example I typed "cyberfusion.goforit.com" and hit enter, the browser resolved to a Bing search page with "HappyDays.goforit.com" in the search field.

In Firefox version 3.5.2 I tested 5 sample pathnames to demonstrate redirects do not violate infringement.

Jeffrey Pinyan

I, Jeffrey Pinyan, declare as follows:

I, Jeffrey Pinyan, inspected all files containing the terms "goforit" or "go4it". The majority of these files were web server log files which record the traffic to a web site. In these files, I found several attempts to access web sites containing the term "goforit". This term "goforit" never appeared in the log files immediately followed by ".com.org" or ".org.com". Instead, there was always another term in between the term "goforit" and ".com.org" or ".org.com"; for example, "www.goforit.enline.org.com".

I also found several files which appear to be Domain Name System (DNS) zone files. These files contain rules for the web server by which it handles requests it receives. The rules contain instructions which regulate what happens when "goforit" is involved the domain name of a web server request. Based on these rules, if the web server received a request for "www.goforit.com.org" or "goforit.org.com", the user would have been sent to an error page. The same error page would appear if the user attempted to access the IP address 0.0.0.0.

The rules in the DNS zone files do not account for requests like the one given as an example in the first paragraph. The DNS zone files do not handle requests like "www.goforit.something.com.org".
